

American Chamber of Commerce Innovation in People Practices Seminar

Engagement in Turbulent Times

Venue: Boston Scientific, Cork

Date: 30th June 2010

Time: 9.30 – 13.00 followed by light networking lunch

Research has also shown that engaged employees are more productive, profitable, safer, create stronger customer relationships and stay longer with their company than less engaged employees – so what are the top performers doing to engage with their staff? With casestudies from Medtronic, PM Group and Abbott Ireland Commercial we will aim to explore the how's and why's of Engagement in Turbulent Times.

PM Group is Ireland's largest architecture and engineering design, project and construction management and technical services consultancy with 1,700 people delivering a comprehensive range of services.

Based in the Citywest Business Campus of Dublin, Abbott Ireland Commercial currently employs more than 120 employees responsible for the sales, marketing and distribution of a wide range of pharmaceutical, hospital, nutritional and diagnostic products.

With 2000 people and a state of the art facility in Galway Medtronic is a centre of excellence for the development and manufacture of a number of key medical technologies for the treatment and management of cardiovascular and cardiac rhythm disease

There is no charge to attend this seminar.
